STILL HERE was great to read this year, published in 2000, after his stroke; there were parallels to my life: my father's strokes, his friends strokes, my cancer and treatment challenges. I am still here, after three deadly encounters (May 2009; July 2009; April 2012), so his theme of embracing death and dying is spot on.

Still Here. My interest in aging came from a personal direction: I was getting older – and so were the baby boomers, who were fast approaching fifty. In this youth-oriented culture, aging is a profound source of suffering, and that is what I was responding to when I decided to turn my attention to conscious aging workshops, and to writing this book. One evening in February 1997, I was in bed at home in Marin Country, contemplating how to end this book.
