To make up the chord, we take that first note (called the root note), and then add what is called the 3rd and the 5th in the major scale of that root note. In my post on the theory of notes we explained how the notes progressed down the strings of the ukulele, and that each note was a semitone apart. The 3rd of the root is 4 semitones above the root and the 5th of the root note is 7 semitones above.
